MRS. TERRY IS A TYPEWRITER.

Interview With the Lady Who Sues for $50,000 Damages.

HER LACERATED FEELINGS.

She Has Dreamy Blue Eyes, a Complexion Like a Peach and a Heart Smashing Smile.

The mystery has been solved. The concealing veil which the attorneys of Mrs. Nellie Terry have sought to cast about her face has been lifted. Such beauty could not remain in obscurity. No outcast barrister could hide it for longer than a day. A Post-Dispatch reporter has gazed enraptured, bewildered, upon that $50,000 countenance.

It's a peach.

The young woman who owns it is a typewriter. Once she used to thump the ivory letters for Humphrey, the clothier. Later she took herself across the street to the offices of the Mexican Central Railroad and there wrote letters and caused all the young men in the city to look at her with admiration. Her face was a study in itself. Her eyes were dreamy and blue, her complexion like a peach, and her smile was smashing.

Her eyes were dreamy and blue, her complexion like a peach, and her smile was smashing. She did not know he was coming, else this story might never have been written. She was seated at her typewriter in a little side office. Her back was turned. As the reporter entered she wheeled around at the mention of her name and smiled.

The weather bureau has no record of any electric disturbances just at Chicago, but it did seem as though there was a flash of lightning, so dazzling was this smile. The rich, red lips curved gladly back over teeth of the purest ivory.

Her eyes glared like diamonds. They were blue-glorious blue—such eyes as drive a man to distraction. Her face was a study in itself. Her eyes were dreamy and blue, her complexion like a peach, and her smile was smashing.

LET ALL TO FATHER BRADY.

Peculiar Context of Archbishop Kenrick's Latest Will.

THE DOCUMENT IS VOID.

Wanted His Vicar-General to Succeed Him and Devise the Church Property With That End.

Archbishop Kenrick's love for his deceased Vicar-General, Rev. P. P. Brady, and his intense desire that he should have been his successor in the government of the archdiocese is the direct cause of the suit filed Saturday against the Archbishop by prominent clergymen and laity of the diocese.

In the lately discovered will of the Archbishop which brought to light the dangerous condition of the diocesan estate, Fr. Brady was made sole legatee of the enormous church property held by the Archbishop.

Fr. Brady has been dead for two years and his will is now being contested. The will is alleged to be irregular and void. If the Archbishop's will is void, then the property of the diocese would have been divided among all the clergy. This would have been a disaster to the diocese.

SEMINARY CONTROL.

It Still Occupies the Attention of the Presbyterian Assembly.

THE SENATE WILL NOT PASS AN HONORARY FELLOW-SERVANT BILL.

PHILIPS COUNTS HIS CATTLE.

The Combine Will Save Off a Vote Until Wednesday at Least.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., May 20.—The morning papers contain a letter which was mentioned in the Associated Press dispatches last night, and which raised a breeze in the Presbyterian General Assembly. It purported to be an attempt to forestall the action of the Assembly in choosing a Moderator in favor of the Liberal side. Before the resumption of the debate on the Seminary question the Hon. R. E. White and Dr. Wm. O. Thompson, president of Miami University at Oxford, O., having the floor. He said there was a misunderstanding on this subject. It had been a negotiation between the Assembly and the seminary, the result of which had been the election of the Moderator. The question now to the point was, "What shall we do with the result?"

There were legal and ecclesiastical considerations concerned in this discussion. To show his personal attitude the speaker said he was one of those who voted for the veto of Prof. Briggs, adding that he would do it again even if it cost him his seat. He then proposed that the report be adopted. The report was adopted. The Assembly then proceeded to discuss the legal questions involved, stating that the constitutions of the States made it impossible to change the laws of the Seminary. The Assembly then proceeded to discuss the legal questions involved, stating that the constitutions of the States made it impossible to change the laws of the Seminary.

Proceeding to take up the points of the report, Dr. Thompson said the church would do better to stand by the report than to do better by the seminary. He called attention to the fact that the seminary was a new institution and that it was not a part of the church. WHEAT'S BIG BULGE.

Another Jump, With Heavy Trading, on the Chicago Board.

CHICAGO, May 20.—Wheat opened today with a big bulge and a continuation of the buying excitement of last week. The market jumped 2 cents within the first half hour's trading and then advanced moderately from the top figures, remaining strong at a good advance over Saturday night's closing figures. The July option opened 1/2 higher at 73 1/2 and went up widely until it struck 74 1/2. There was free selling at the high point and prices fell to 74 1/2. The advance was generally ascribed to the old wheat crop in the West, but was largely the result of a rush of buying orders from the country.
